

The Harvest Fields

Winter 2015

Holiday Greetings to Partners and Friends of Compassion, I pray this brief update newsletter finds each of you well and excited about celebrating the true reason for the upcoming season.

Back to School:

Our schools in Benin were truly blessed this year as they headed back to school in October with an abundance of school supplies. New Beginnings Church in West Covina, California (Pastor Terry Whitehurst) spear-headed a wonderful drive led by his wife Laronica Whitehurst for our precious children in Africa. They received all sorts of things that made them well set for learning.

Compassion to the Window Again:

As many of you may know, I have been in the States on an extended furlough which is coming to an end. While home I have been seeking my Father as to the “What Next” while refueling with a Bible curriculum called Sonship (School of the Firstborn) and have been tremendously blessed, stretched and getting a “revelation of a difference”. This course has given me insight on the possible next journey of this, your missionary. I desire to take an investigative trip to the country of India where there remains over 2000 unreached people groups. The approximate cost of this is $4000. If any of you can and will be one of 40 people to sew a seed of $100; God can send me. Please pray, consider and earmark for “India”.

Birthday Gift for Jesus?

At this time of year, many of us get caught up in the excitement, over-spend and may even forget the real reason for the season and conclude by repenting in January with new vows. Unfortunately, many Churches and Missions see a drop in giving. May I please encourage you this year to make a vow before the Holidays? Please don't forget about us and consider giving a special gift to Jesus this year...however small it would be greatly appreciated.
